CGMA Africa Conference 2019 to explore the changing shape of the finance function

Expert speakers from around the world will convene to explore how the expectations of the finance role have changed in the digital age

JOHANNESBURG, 7 August 2019 – Leading financial sector minds are set to descend to Cape Town for Africa’s premier gathering to discuss financial transformation in the digital age and propose solutions to key challenges faced by the sector, particularly on the African continent.

The two-day conference, held by The Chartered Institute of Management Accountants (CIMA), the largest professional body of management accountants in the world, will take place at the Cape Town International Convention Centre from 11-12 September. Over 30 prominent speakers and panelists from leading global and national companies will participate in tackling themes like artificial intelligence, robotics, automation and the financial and leadership skills needed to take on these opportunities and challenges.

“The CGMA Africa Conference will explore the changes that are impacting the finance function, what it will look like and how finance professionals can gain the skills they need to thrive in a rapidly changing world,” CIMA Africa Regional VP Tim Simba said. He added “Our goal is to lead, inspire and equip the profession with the right skills to take on a constantly evolving finance function.”

The conference will explore the skills and competencies that delegates will need to lead their organisations and ensure they remain relevant.

“Finance professionals need to adopt an agile mindset that allows them to learn, unlearn and relearn the skills they need to succeed in the fourth industrial revolution,” explained CIMA President Amal Ratnayake, FCMA, CGMA. “I am pleased to be a part of the second CGMA Africa Conference, where accountants in Africa will learn how to thrive in an increasingly digital finance world.”

Through the Association of International Certified Professional Accountants, the global accounting organisation formed by CIMA and the AICPA to advance the accounting profession worldwide, CIMA is uniquely positioned to work with global stakeholders to investigate, analyse and document how the finance sector is changing. CIMA’s research into the Future of Finance revealed expanding mandates for finance, digital technologies and new sources of data, which are combining to change the shape of the finance function.

“Finance people will still need to be able to perform day-to-day accounting tasks,” says Dr. Noel Tagoe, leading academic and finance consultant on the Future of Finance, moderator and keynote speaker. “They will still require a core technical skillset and must be able to use it efficiently in a business context. But they will also be required to sharpen their people skills and leadership skills. And perhaps most importantly, they will need to master what we call ‘digital skills’ because we now live in a rapidly evolving digital world.”

The CGMA Africa Conference will be chaired by Founding Director and CEO of property, asset management and infrastructure advisory firm Innate Investment Solutions, Ms. Lynette Ntuli. Ms. Ntuli is renowned for her abilities as an MC, CEO, female leader and entrepreneur and is considered an expert on topics such as entrepreneurship, business development, retail and consumer dynamics, emerging market economic and demographic trends. She has earned a reputation as a proficient and professional speaker and moderator in South Africa.

About The Chartered Institute of Management Accountants

The Chartered Institute of Management Accountants (CIMA), founded in 1919, is the world's leading and largest professional body of management accountants. As part of The Association of International Certified Professional Accountants (the Association) its members and students operate in 179 countries, working at the heart of business. CIMA members and students work in industry, commerce, the public sector and not-for-profit organizations. CIMA works closely with employers and sponsors leading-edge research, constantly updating its qualification, professional experience requirements and continuing professional development to ensure it remains the employers' choice when recruiting financially trained business leaders.

About the Chartered Global Management Accountant (CGMA) designation

The CGMA designation is the most widely held management accounting designation in the world. It was established in 2012 by the American Institute of CPAs (AICPA) and The Chartered Institute of Management Accountants (CIMA) to elevate the profession of management accounting globally. It distinguishes more than 150,000 accounting and finance professionals who have advanced proficiency in finance, operations, strategy and management. In the U.S., the vast majority are also CPAs. The CGMA designation is underpinned by extensive global research to maintain the highest relevance with employers and develop competencies most in demand. CGMAs qualify through rigorous education, exam and experience requirements. They must commit to lifelong education and adhere to a stringent code of ethical conduct. Businesses, governments and nonprofits around the world trust CGMAs to guide critical decisions that drive strong performance.

About the Association of International Certified Professional Accountants

The Association of International Certified Professional Accountants (the Association) is the most influential body of professional accountants, combining the strengths of the American Institute of CPAs (AICPA) and The Chartered Institute of Management Accountants (CIMA) to power opportunity, trust and prosperity for people, businesses and economies worldwide. It represents 657,000 members and students in public and management accounting and advocates for the public interest and business sustainability on current and emerging issues. With broad reach, rigor and resources, the Association advances the reputation, employability and quality of CPAs, CGMAs and accounting and finance professionals globally.
